Many sports clothes and goods are made in Asian countries like China, Indonesia and Sri Lanka. Some will end up in our shops. Here are the stories of some of the people who make these products.

What's fair/unfair in these stories?
Can you find any evidence to show people being treated fairly or unfairly at work?

I worked from early in the morning until 2 a.m. the next day... I was so exhausted, but I was still required to go to work as usual the next day.

13-year-old girl making stationery for the Beijing Olympics in China

I have a permanent job as a machine operator. I make Adidas t-shirts and trousers. I work from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.* I am allowed a 10-minute tea break in the morning and afternoon. I have half an hour for lunch.

* Includes two hours over-time

Sandamalee, aged 26, Sri Lanka

I have had training on health and safety. I get 14 days paid leave in a whole year, but no paid sick leave.

Sheran makes Nike products in Sri Lanka.

My wage is conditional. If I don’t complete my daily target within the regular working hours, I have to work overtime without pay to finish my target.

Garment worker on a temporary contract in a factory supplying Nike, Adidas and Fila in Indonesia

I definitely can’t survive on my basic wage of £64 a month. I have to work overtime – I work about 60 hours a week. Accommodation and childcare alone costs £25 a month.

Sheran makes Nike products in Sri Lanka.

None of us has time to go to the toilet or drink water. Even so, we are working without rest and are always afraid of not working fast enough to supply soles to the next production line. The supervisors are pressuring and nagging us all the time.

Worker making New Balance shoes, Dongguan, China

I participated in a strike to ask for better working conditions and wages. Soon afterwards, I lost my job.

Hamdani made Adidas products in Indonesia.